pansion, each individual of this community holds a feeling of gratitude towards the rest of the community. This community has made great progress in the past, and today has a high stage of development, but that development has by no means been completed. The citizens realize that the future holds much for them, and it is almost certain that they will keep pace with all progress and prosperity.